Passage:
Read the passage given below and answer following questions:

In the Roman times, defected enemies were generally put to death as criminals for having offended the emperor of Rome.In the middle ages, however, the practice of ransoming of returning prisoners in exchange for money became common.Though some saw this custom as a step towards a most humane society, the primary reasons behind it were economic rather than humanitarian.

In those times, rulers had only a limited ability to raise taxes.They could neither force their subject to fight nor pay them to do so.The promise of material compensation in the form of goods and ransom was therefore the only way of inducing combatants to participate in a war. In the middle ages, the predominant incentive for the individual soldiers was the expectation of spoils.Although collecting ransom clearly brought financial gain, keeping a prisoner and arranging for his exchange had its cost. Consequently, procedures were devised to reduce transaction costs.

One such device was a rule asserting that the prisoner had to assess his own value. This compelled the prisoner to establish a value without too much distortion; indicating too low a value would increase, the captive's chances of being killed, while indicating too high a value would either ruin him financially or create a prohibitively expensive ransom that would also result in death.

Itemcode : BO1043

Q1 : It can be inferred from the passage that a medieval soldier

(a) was less likely to kill captured members of opposing armies than was a soldier of the Roman Empire.
(b) was similar to a 20th Century terrorist in that he operated on a basically independent level and was motivated solely by economic incentives.
(c) had few economic options and chose to fight because it was the only way to earn an adequate living.
(d) was motivated to spare prisoners' lives by humanitarian rather than economic ideals.
Key: A

Itemcode : BO1044

Q2 : Which of the following best describes the change in Policy from executing prisoners in Roman times to ransoming prisoners in the Middle Ages?

(a) The emperors of Rome demanded more respect than did medieval Rulers and thus Roman subjects went to greater lengths to defend their nation.
(b) It was a reflection of the lesser degree of direct control medieval Ruler had over subjects.
(c) It became a show of strength and honour warrior of the Middle Ages to be able to capture and return their enemies.
(d) Medieval soldiers were not as humanitarian as their ransoming practices might have indicated.
Key: B

Itemcode : BO1045

Q3 : The primary purpose of the passage is to

(a) Discuss the economic basis of the Medieval practice of exchanging prisoners for ransom.
(b) Examine the history of the treatment of Prisoner of War.
(c) Emphasize the importance of a warrior's code of honour during the Middle Ages.
(d) Explore a way of reducing the cost of ransom.
Key: A

Itemcode : BO1046

Q4 : The author uses the phrase "without too much distortion" in order to

(a) Indicate that prisoners would fairly assess their worth.
(b) Emphasize the important role Medieval prisoners played in determining whether they should be ransomed.
(c) Explain how prisoners often paid more than an appropriate ransom in order to increase their chance for survival.
(d) Suggest that Captors and Captives often had understanding relationships.
Key: A

Itemcode : BO1047

Q5 : Bring out the meaning of the word 'spoils' as used in the passage.

(a) Unfit for eating.

(b) Excessive kindness.
(c) Booty or loot captured in a fight or war.
(d) Prizes won.
Key: C

Passage:
Read the passage given below and answer following questions:

The factor of geographical distribution is equally possibly even more, significant that English is spoken as first or native language in at least four continents of the world, Russian in two, Chinese and the Indian languages in one. English is without question the closest approach to a world language today.It goes without saying that no two persons ever have an identical command of their common language. Certainly, they have not precisely the same vocabulary. There are at least minor differences in pronunciation, indeed the same individual will not pronounce his vowels and consonants in absolutely identical fashion everytime he utters them. Everyone possesses, in addition, certain individual traits of grammatical form and syntactical order, constituting that peculiar and personal quality of language which we term as style. All of this is implicit in the well-known phrase, 'Style is the man.' No men are identical, no two styles are the same. If this be true of but two persons, the potential of differences resident in a language spoken by more than 200 million truly staggers imagination.

Itemcode : BO1048

Q6 : The author argues that English is the closest approach to a World language because

(a) There are more native speakers of English than of any other language
(b) English has less number of mutually un-intelligible dialects
(c) The geographical distribution of English covers a much greater area
(d) Other languages are much too complex to be World languages
Key: A

Itemcode : BO1049

Q7 : The fact that the same individual will not pronounce his vowels and consonants identically everytime shows that

(a) Literary style varies from person to person
(b) Mutual intelligibility is a myth
(c) Vocabulary varies from individual to individual
(d) No two persons speak the same language exactly the same way
Key: D

Itemcode : BO1050

Q8 : It is evident from the passage that style is

(a) A strange type of language
(b) A language where one does not have to be particular about correctness and grammar
(c) Language used in a particular way by an individual
(d) A question of grammatical and syntactic correctness
Key: C

Itemcode : BO1051

Q9 : According to some authorities

(a) More people speak Chinese dialect than English
(b) More people speak English as an auxiliary language than as a first language
(c) More people speak English in the UK than in England
(d) About one-fourth of the World's population speaks English
Key: D

Itemcode : BO1052

Q10 : The overall implication of the passage is that

(a) To suppose that 230 million people speak English as a native language would certainly be an underestimate
(b) The 55 million inhabitants of the British Isles speak like the 30 million inhabitants of the dominions and colonies
(c) A little less than half the native English speakers in the World live in the US
(d) About one-tenth of the total English speaking World population lives in British dominions and colonies.
Key: A
