The examination system is both an opiate and a poison. It is an opiate because it lulls us into believing that all is well when most is ill. 'Look,' the public says, 'at this list of scholarships; see how many children have got their School Certificates: something is happening; the school is doing its job.' Something no doubt is happening; but it may not be education: it may be the administration of a poison which paralyses or at least slows down the natural activities of the healthy mind. The healthy human being finding himself a creature of unknown capacities in an unknown world, wants to learn what the world is like, and what he should be and do in. Read the following passage and answer the questions given below:

Curiosity properly so-called, on the other hand, is inspired by a genuine love of knowledge. You may see this impulse, in a moderately pure form, at work in a cat which has been brought to a strange room, and proceeds to smell every corner and every piece of furniture. You will also see it in children, who are passionately interested when a drawer or cupboard which is usually closed is opened for their inspection. Animals, machines, thunderstorms, and all forms of manual work, arouse the curiosity of children, whose thirst for knowledge, puts the most intelligent adult to shame. This impulse grows weaker with advancing years, until at last what is unfamiliar inspires only disgust, with no desire for a closer acquaintance. This is the stage at which people announce that the country is going to the dogs, and that 'things are not what they were in my young days.' The things which are not the same as it was in that far-off time is the speaker's curiosity. And with the death of curiosity we may reckon that active intelligence, also has died.
