Question Description

The fewer restrictions there are on the advertising of legal services, the more lawyers there are who advertise their services, and the lawyers who advertise a specific service usually charge less for that service than lawyers who do not advertise. Therefore, if the state removes any of its current restrictions, such as the one against advertisements that do not specify fee arrangements, overall consumer legal costs will be lower than if the state retains its current restrictions.

If the statements in the passage are true, which of the following must be true?

A

Some lawyers who now advertise will charge more for specific services if they do not have to specify fee arrangements in the advertisements.

B

More consumers will use legal services if there are fewer restrictions on the advertising of legal service.

C

If the restriction against advertisements that do not specify fee arrangements is removed, more lawyers will advertise their services.

D

If more lawyers advertise lower prices for specific services, some lawyers who do not advertise will also charge less than they currently charge for those services.

Question Description

Carefully read the statements in the questions below and arrange them in a logical order.

1. So too it is impossible for there to be any propositions of ethics. Propositions can express nothing that is higher.
2. The sense of the world must lie outside the world. In the world everything is as it is, and everything happens as it does happen: in it no value exists - and if it did exist it would have no value. If there is any value that does have value, it must lie outside the whole sphere of what happens and is the case. For all that happens and is the case is accidental. What makes it non-accidental cannot lie within the world, since if it did it would itself be accidental. It must lie outside the world.
3. It is clear that ethics cannot be put into words. Ethics is transcendental.
4. All propositions are of equal value.

Read the following passage and answer the questions below:

Curiosity properly so-called, on the other hand, is inspired by a genuine love of knowledge. You may see this impulse, in a moderately pure form, at work in a cat which has been brought to a strange room, and proceeds to smell every corner and every piece of furniture. You will also see it in children, who are passionately interested when a drawer or cupboard which is usually closed is opened for their inspection. Animals, machines, thunderstorms, and all form of manual work, arouse the curiosity of children, whose thirst for knowledge, puts the most intelligent adults to shame. This impulse grows weaker with advancing years, until at last what is unfamiliar inspires only disgust, with no desire for a closer acquaintance. This is the stage at which people announce that the country is going to the dogs, and that 'things are not what they were in my young days.' The things which not the same as it was in that far-off time is the speaker's curiosity. And with the death of curiosity, we may reckon that active intelligence, also has died.

Read the data below and answer the questions.

Three friends Roxy, Tony, and Appu stand on the bank of a straight river of uniform width. They walk this path everyday, and are totally aware of all distances. The river can be crossed by a bridge 2 km away from where they stand.

The original plan is that Roxy is to swim parallel to the bridge and wait for the others who would walk to the bridge, then across it, and then to where Roxy stood, and join him exactly in 20 minutes. Tony and Appu walk for 5 minutes from their original position, and then deviating from the plan, Tony decides to swim parallel to the bridge and wait on the other side for Appu.

Appu reaches the bridge in 4 minutes, rests there for a while which again was not scheduled in their original plan, and meets Tony 15 minutes since they had parted ways.

Question Description

On meeting Tony, if Appu and Tony walk towards the spot where Roxy is waiting, how many minutes have elapsed between Roxy leaving the duo and then meeting them again?
